
295/495 Independent Studies in (Subject) 1-4 Units

College courses basic to the study

An Independent studies course involves an individual student or small group of students in study; research, or activities beyond the scope of regularly offered courses, pursuant to agreement among the college, faculty member, and student(s). Studies having to do with transfer programs are numbered 495, and studies related to two-year vocational programs are numbered 295. For more information see Instructional Program: Independent and Special Study in the front of the catalog.

299/499 Experimental Offering in (Subject) 1-4 Units

College courses basic to the study

An experimental offering scheduled to provide students with the opportunity to pursue studies of special interest which are not covered in established catalog courses. Specific studies are designated according to the subject field to be studied. Studies having to do with transfer programs are numbered 499, and studies related to two-year vocational programs are numbered 299.